Complementary information	The route between Montbovon and Montreux is one of the most scenic sections of the GoldenPass Line. Throughout the journey, passengers are immersed in a succession of breathtaking landscapes, from alpine valleys and traditional Swiss villages to the shores of Lake Geneva. As the train descends towards Montreux, the scenery gradually opens up, revealing sweeping views over the lake and the terraced vineyards of Lavaux, a UNESCO World Heritage site. While the train does not pass directly through the vineyards, it offers exceptional panoramic views of the vineyard slopes from above, showcasing the remarkable transition from alpine scenery to the Mediterranean-influenced Swiss Riviera. This section of the journey perfectly illustrates the diversity of the GoldenPass route, combining mountain landscapes, lakeside panoramas, and cultural heritage into one unforgettable experience.
